FARMER JONES AND HIS COW PEN

By JUDGE W. M. BRUNSON

The writer of this column believes that people in this section should fully enjoy the good things of this life. It is mighty easy for us to add many good things to our daily bill of fare if we only go a little thinking and a little work.

Fish and game in this section are almost a thing of the past and our State and Federal governments are putting on a fish and game conservation program in this section. There are a few things which we individuals might promote without the help of our government and one of those things is the frog business. I realize that many of our people in this section have an idea that frog legs are not good to eat but they are certainly badly mistaken. There is no finer meat raised in this country than that of frog meat and there is no excuse for anyone being prejudiced against it. Two or three holes of water with a fence around it and the proper care will produce more bull frogs than your community will need. I am of the opinion that it would pay the citizens of any community to get together and make a trade with one man to raise frogs for the community. As soon as they are large enough to care for themselves they should be divided out and placed in the various ponds and streams of the community. There is no greater sport than frogging and there is no finer dish than frog legs.

If you happen to be one of those who have a prejudice against frogs then you might look at the matter from a commercial standpoint. Frog legs are worth about twenty cents a pair at any and all times. If your boy could go out and catch five bull frogs he could sell them for a dollar. If your premises were well stocked with frogs you should be able to catch as many as twenty-five to fifty frogs each week during the months. A frog crop could be a very profitable crop if properly managed. Of course, the frog business must be confined to those communities where there are branches and ponds. Most communities in this section of the state are well adapted to the growing of frogs and also the raising of frogs would not interfere in the slightest with your farm business or other work in life. I know of no reason why each and every farmer in this section should not produce his full share of bull frogs.

I would like to make a few suggestions concerning your tomato crop. I hope that you have selected your tomatoes on land which has a clay subsoil and that you have fertilized them reasonably well. I suggest that you secure stakes about six feet long and that you drive these stakes down by the side of the tomato plant. I think it best to have two stakes to the plant and these stakes should be put into the ground about a foot deep. A stake that is not fertile a five-foot stake will be long enough. A one-inch stake will be large enough and five to six feet long is very desirable for a stake. If you do not have the stakes on hand then I suggest that you use poles cut from the woods. Drive your stakes about twelve inches apart which will put each stak eabout six inches from the plant. I suggest that you use discarded fertilizer bags or other old cloth for the making of strings. You need a large soft string which will not cut your tomato limbs. Drive small nails in the edges of the stake so the strings will not slip down and train your tomato plants to grow straight up between the stakes. Your tomatoes should be pruned twice each week and you should prune to not more than a small amount of time if it is done regularly. Each vine should carry from five to ten tomatoes at a time. The fewer tomatoes you allow to grow on each vine the larger the tomatoes will grow. If the tomato plant is properly staked, tied and pruned and the soil cultivated it should be easy to continue to bear until frost. Of course, the plan is suggested for only use only and is not practical for the commercial grower. However, a tomato patch or small garden if properly cared for as above suggested will keep your table well supplied with tomatoes throughout the summer. You should have another large patch for canning and preserving purposes and of course it would not pay to stake the tomatoes. A small amount round tomato is the desirable tomato for the market but you can also take a large red-meated tomato for our home use and we can certainly have just as many as we want and they are them as fine as we want if we only do our part.

I wonder how many farmers in this section know what a logan berry is. I want to see a logan berry when every farm family in this section will have at least one vine of logan berries in their garden. The logan berry has the general appearance of a black berry or a raspberry except that it is much larger and more delicious. They are very easy to raise and one row across the garden if properly cared for should produce from fifty to one hundred gallons of berries each year. The logan berry may be used for every purpose that a black berry is used for and you can gather more berries from one row across your garden than your family will need for the entire year. I simply cannot understand why any farmer can afford to be without logan berries. I feel that each farm family should have logan berries and I know that every family living in town should have them. If you are not familiar with the logan berry I suggest that you begin making inquiry about them at once as this month is the best month to put them out.

I have had a lot to say in the past about bedding sweet potatoes for seed. Only last week I saw about a dozen boys at a ball game and I want to tell you about it now as I might forget about it before next spring. I know a man who prepared his seed bed of potatoes in the fall of the year at digging time. He prepared his bed on the south side of a building and in his garden. He made his bed about three feet wide and twenty feet long, covering the potatoes with about three or four inches of earth. Those potatoes sprouted and grew slips as early as any man would have in the spring and he slips put out from this bed have runners on them as long as your arm all the whole time but that man is thoroughly convinced that it is best to prepare your sweet potato bed at the time of year that you do your digging. I never knew that I could get as many slips or any other person but this one test has proven very satisfactory. Of course, the bed must be prepared on elevated so that the winter rains will drain off easily and it will be necessary to put a few planks boards or planks over the bed during the winter months.

It will soon be time for the Mexican bean beetle to begin destroying the vines and leaves of beans. Some years they completely destroy the entire crop. They can easily detect this beetle as it is copper colored and has sixteen black spots on its back. If this beetle attacks your butter beans you cannot grow any appreciable crop of beans unless you destroy the beetle. If you will get two pounds of magnesium sulphate and mix it with a hundred gallons of water you will have a solution which will destroy the beetle and which will not injure your butter beans or pole beans. If you will get this solution on the under side of the leaves. One pound of this solution with fifty gallons of water will be sufficient for any family garden, and I want to suggest that you would rather beans very closely in order that you may destroy this beetle before he destroys your butter bean crop.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the people of Leverett community for their kindness shown us during the sickness and death of our beloved mother, Mrs. Lurinda Harris, wife of J. E. Harris, who passed away on April 30. She had been ill ten weeks. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord. We hated to give her up and all that loving hands could do was done for her, but the Lord knows best and He called her home to dwell with Him in peace and rest. She passed away easily, almost like a hero going out. She has gone on beyond the starry skies to a place prepared for all the rest of us some day. In death we will call us home to stay with mother. That will be a happy meeting, although it was a sad parting.

She was loved by everybody. Surviving are four children who mourn her death: Gordon Harris of Opp, Joe Harris of Leverett, Mrs. Gussie McKinney of Pensacola, Fla., and Mrs. J. J. Whitehurst of near Leverett.—Written by her Daughter.

SCREW WORMS APPEAR IN SOUTH ALABAMA

AUBURN, Ala.—Indications are that the screw worm will strike the Alabama livestock industry another severe blow this year unless farmers and livestock owners take the necessary steps to control the pest. The worm has already been found in a number of South Alabama counties.

In an effort to help the farmers of the State prevent the spread of this insect, Dr. R. S. Sugg, extension livestock specialist, and Prof. J. M. Robinson, entomologist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, give the following "methods of preventing the spread:"

1. Keep all animals with injuries or "sores" in a small lot or pasture where they can be examined carefully every day.

2. Avoid castrating, dehorning, marking, branding, etc., during the screw worm season, which is usually from May to killing frost.

3. In the Gulf Coast region especially, examine all animals for ear ticks and if found swab out the ear with pine tar oil being careful not to allow the oil to run down into the ear.

4. Rake the pastures daily and remove all infested animals. Such cases should be treated promptly and kept in screened pens or lots where they can be handled. If infested cases are allowed to stay with the herd, maggots will drop out of the wounds and greatly increase the number of flies.

5. All animals that die of any cause should be burned as soon as possible after death or buried at least 3 feet under ground. This means that a hole at least 4 feet deep should be dug for a cow. Burning carcasses is more effective than burying in controlling the pest.

Mrs. Lewis Brooks and little son and Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Tillman are visiting friends in Columbus, Georgia, this week.

Mrs. F. A. Farris and two children returned last Wednesday from a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Mitchell, Sr., and family in Montgomery.

PRIZE-WINNING ESSAYS

We are publishing below two prize-winning essays written recently in a contest sponsored by the American Legion. Quite a number of these papers were submitted and the judges selected winners by number. The one on Robert E. Lee was written by Mary Winston, fifth grade pupil. The Stonewall Jackson paper was written by Jean Brunson, sixth grade pupil.

Robert E. Lee

Robert E. Lee was born in Virginia on January 19, 1807. He was a graduate of West Point. He married Miss Mary Parke Curtis, the great granddaughter of Washington's wife. In 1834 he became an assistant to the chief engineer of the army at Washington. Eighteen years later he became superintendent of West Point Military School.

Then Lee went to Texas. He stayed there six years until Texas seceded from the Union. Lee was opposed to the breaking up of the Union. He felt that slavery was an evil to the white people as well as to the colored race. Lee had inherited the few slaves that he had when he arrived at Washington. Before the Civil War broke out he freed Lee the place as commander of the Union army, but Lee refused to draw a weapon against his native country, "Virginia." In April, 1861, he resigned his post as commander of Virginia's Army.

Lee fought four years against odds. In the age of eighty-four he died a broken man. The Conroy home, had no clothes, food or water, Lee surrendered to Grant. This happened on April 9, 1865. It is said that when Lee returned to his lines he was seen straining down his checks and he also heard him have fought throughout the war together. "Is all lost?" he asked. "All the men tried to touch him and his horse, whose name was "Traveller."

After the war, Lee was offered the office as president of Washington and Lee College on August 5, 1865. He did not start work until October 2, 1865. Once a Northerner asked Lee, as he sneered, simply, sincere, kindhearted, brave. Lee was once in the Mexico war with General Scott. After the war Scott said of him, "Success in Mexico was due largely to the skill and valor of Robert Edward Lee."

Lee and Stonewall Jackson were good friends. One of the saddest days of Lee's greatest sorrows was when Jackson died. Jackson was buried at an enemy post of his own men killed him by mistake.

Lee, after fighting in the war against the North, would not take any kind of office. He said that it might bring up a bitter quarrel between the people. When the South lost, Lee took all the blame. When Lee died in 1870, every one, even in the North, took it as a personal loss. It happened one morning when his health failed him. He went South but it did no good. He died October 12, 1870.

Lee was one of the greatest men in history. There are two monuments to remember him by, one of them being at Richmond.

Stonewall Jackson

Stonewall Jackson was a man of pure and spotless character and both the North and South unite in honoring his memory. His life was given to the service of his state. As a teacher, he instructed her military pursuits at Lexington as a patriot, he hastened to her defense at the first indication that she was to be attacked; as a Christian, he never failed to render to the All Mighty in a strong and powerful nature before each battle; as a general, he inspired unlimited confidence in the hearts of his men and had come to believe that where he was defeat could not be; as a military genius he stands as one of the greatest military commanders the world has ever produced.

Thomas Jonathan Jackson was born in 1824, at Clarksburg, Va. At a very young age he lost his father, a pennless orphan. Therefore, he learned to depend upon himself and received his education through his own efforts. He attended a small country school in Virginia and at the age of eighteen was elected sheriff. Soon afterward, he decided to go to West Point. When he arrived at the place, he presented himself before the Secretary of War and the Secretary was so impressed by the boy's determination that he gave him an appointment at once. He graduated in 1846 in a class with A. P. Hill and Pickett.

He served in the Mexican war and really enjoyed it, for he was a born fighter. In the war he won much distinction. In a few months he was promoted from the rank of second lieutenant to major.

In 1861 when the quarrel between the North and the South came to a crisis he threw his fortunes with his own people. Though he wished to see the Union preserved, he did not believe that the North should force the South to stay in the Union if she wished to withdraw.

Once, when to Jackson's men defeat seemed certain, Lee came riding up and said, "General, this is a beating us back." "Sir," answered Jackson quietly, "we shall give them the slip yet."

Lee went galloping back to his men and shouted, "Look! There stands Jackson like a stone wall. Let us determine to die here and we shall conquer." Henceforth he was called "Stonewall."

Though he stood like a stone wall in battle, he was a great part of his fame by his great haste in marching his men from one place to another. So rapid were his movements that he often rendered valuable aid to Lee.

In May, 1864, he and some of his men were mistaken for a part of the Union army and he received his death wound. His dying words were: "Let us go over the river and rest our army under the trees" The thoughts of the war were in his delirious mind.

The following poem was written by one of his soldiers who lost his life in the Shenandoah Valley:

Silence! Ground arms! Kneel all! Caps off!

Old Blue Light's goin' to pray. Strangle the fool that dares to scoff, Attention! It's his way.

Appealing from his native sod, In form a pauper is to God. Lay bare thine arm! Stretch forth thy arm.

Amen! That's Stonewall's way.

ASK ME ANOTHER

A few years ago the "ask me another" tests were in great favor, and while many of the questions were of little practical significance, the fad perhaps did to some extent lead inquiring minds to gain an added knowledge of things in general.

Recently 25 Princeton professors gave themselves an "intelligence test," and it may be of satisfaction to some to know that they made a rather sorry showing in their answers. Out of 41 questions asked, the star professor of the lot could answer only 19 correctly. Others made scores considerably lower.

But before we offhand decide that college professors are dumbbells, anyway, let's look at some of the questions. Here are three of them:

Did Naevius originate the fabulae praetextatae? Has the fourdimensional anazogue of a cube 12 corners? Are the roots of a general polynomial of degree higher than four, complex numbers?

Being somewhat conservative in matters of this kind, our answer to all three would probably have been the familiar "Yes—and No."

Tornado Kills Couple Near Midland City And Injures Child; Much Damage Done

MIDLAND CITY, May 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Hewey Conroy were killed and a child three-year-old son, Hewey, Jr., was injured shortly before noon Monday as a cyclone struck their home a mile east of here.

The family was carried 150 yards as the storm flattened their small home and three barns in the vicinity. Mrs. Conroy, 25, was killed outright and Mr. Conroy, 26, died a short time later. His son was taken to a Dothan hospital.

The cyclone came out of the southeast about 10 a.m. and spread a path of destruction for two miles. Barns were wrecked, livestock killed and injured and crops and outhouses heavily damaged. T. V. Harrison, who saw the storm approach from the Conroy home, said the cyclone was accompanied by a large funnel shaped black cloud.

Across the road from the Conroy home, Jim Wright Benson and his family fled from their residence and took refuge in the nearest corn field and were unharmed. The Benson home had been moved and damaged as part of the pillars were blown away.

The Conroy home and the three adjoining barns were smashed into hundreds of pieces which were scattered for more than a quarter of a mile. Several mules in the barns were badly injured, two probably fatally.

The Conroy residence was the beginning of a path of ruin that extended two miles, most of it across open fields in which corn, cotton and other crops were battered down. At the end of the path, the barn of J. R. Lee was destroyed and his home heavily damaged.

The Lee family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Lee, their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lee, and their baby, fled to a nearby, frail and sought shelter in a ditch. The storm passed over them, sparing them injury, death and wreckage. "The storm lasted but just half a minute," said the elder Lee, "but long enough to wreck the entire farm."

A mile beyond the Lee farm, the home and barn of Mr. and Mrs. Callie Waldham were heavily hit. The extent of damage at this place could not be determined because of its inaccessibility due to wrecked and uprooted trees. Reports were that no one was injured.

All telephone communications were cut off, leaving the entire area surrounding Midland City isolated. Word got through to Dothan and ambulances were called, the first taking Mr. Conroy and his son to the hospital. The entire countryside was combed for possible injured, but no more were found.

The Conroy family probably did not know what struck them, as they were in the house when the storm swept in from the Montgomery highway 200 yards away. As the house was leveled, the wind carried them for 150 yards, depositing all three in an open field with wreckage still flying around.

Neighbors braved a heavy wind and rain to go to their aid. They found Mrs. Conroy dead. She had a broken arm, crushed right hip, broken leg, a crushed chest and head and face injuries. Mr. Conroy suffered a fractured skull, broken left arm and crushed chest.

The Conroy child suffered head injuries, a broken arm and a broken leg. His condition was described by hospital attendants as "very serious," with recovery a matter of doubt.

The Conroy home was located on a large plantation owned by A. B. Hawkins. The three barns and the other buildings were owned by Mr. Hawkins. They were situated on a plot an acre square and this tract was virtually leveled. Debris was hurled for hundreds of yards into open fields.

Efforts of ambulances and other rescuers to reach the stricken section were hampered by fallen telephone lines and poles. In some spots wreckage had to be removed from the highway to allow the ambulances to pass. Outside of the Conroy family, their assistance was non needed.

Reports of the cyclone, reminiscent of one area but learned of seek refuge. This early season probably saved many of them from injuries as at least half a dozen families ran to the nearest ditches and dug in. This precaution, however, came near causing additional deaths as a storm of water filled the air everywhere.

Continuing its northeasterly route, the storm passed over Headland but no damage was reported there. Unconfirmed reports were that buildings at Newville were slightly damaged. Telephone lines to Newville were down and that section was also isolated, but no requests for medical aid or ambulance were forthcoming from that area.

Storm Strikes At McCullough

ATMORE, Ala., May 20.—One man was perhaps fatally injured and another suffered severe injuries, and at least six others received minor hurts when a tornado struck the community of McCullough, Ala., 15 miles north of Atmore, at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

E. D. Donaldson, 24, suffered a broken back, and Alcea Plant suffered a badly lacerated leg when the Donaldson home was demolished.

Donaldson, his wife and two children, Plant and his wife, and Donaldson's father and mother were in the Donaldson home at the time the tornado struck. The elder Donaldson said he watched the approach of the tornado from the front gallery, and had stepped into a room when it struck, completely demolishing the home and catching the younger Donaldson and Plant beneath timbers. All the occupants of the house suffered injuries.

The tornado cut a path about 100 yards wide, and laid low corn and cotton crops, and was accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain.

Mrs. Jessie Mae Padgett, wife of Sam Padgot, well known young citizen of the Danley's Cross Roads community, passed away early Tuesday morning after an illness of two weeks. Brill's fever is said to have been the cause of her death. She was 26 years of age, having been born on April 28, 1909.

Surviving are her husband and one daughter, Mary Nell Padgett, her parent, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Rhodes, two brothers and three sisters.

Funeral services were conducted by Minister W. T. Grider of Troy at the home on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock, with special music by the Curtis Male Quartet. Interment was in the cemetery at Danley's Cross Roads. Bonneau-Jeter had charge of arrangements.

MOTHERS AND FRIENDS ENTERTAIN SENIORS—

Another and the final happy occasion for the Elba High School Seniors was the picnic dinner provided for them by the mothers and friends of the members of the class.

On Friday, after the Class Day program, they went to Lily Valley where a bounteous feast was served them, consisting of a barbecue plate with all the good things that it takes for a picnic dinner. After which ice cream and cake were served. Again, during the afternoon, ice cream and cake were served.

Mrs. Carnley, Mrs. Brock, Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Dixon served the plates.—Contributed.

"HOME-COMING" EVENT SET FOR SECOND WEEK IN AUG.

At the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening it was definitely decided to have a "home-coming" week in Elba during the second week in August, which will be August 11 to 17. This matter was discussed at the last meeting of the body but over protests was taken at that time. Those who have been talking the matter say that every citizen approached is enthusiastic over the proposition, and within the next two or three days a number of committees will be named by the president of the club to have complete arrangements for this gala event.

It is planned to canvass the town and secure the names of all former residents who have relatives here. Special invitations will be sent to them urging them to spend the week or as much time as they can back at the old home town. It is very probable that many visitors who were not born in Elba but who have lived here and lived here will also come back during the week.

A series of entertainments, including band concerts, community choir singing, Sacred Harp singing, baseball games, etc., will be arranged for the benefit of the visitors and it is probable that all former residents will be given a barbecue one day during the week. Complete plans for the observance of the occasion and for the entertainment features will be announced when all committees have been named and organized.

The Chamber of Commerce realizes that this is a big undertaking and that the cooperation of the citizens of the city is needed and must be had in order to put it over. This is a community enterprise and all those who are interested in Elba and our former citizens, and who would like to see them come back to meet their old friends and renew acquaintances, must take part in planning the program and seeing it carried to completion. Every family will be expected to invite a guest to visit them and entertain them in their homes during the week. The date has been fixed more than two months hence in order that people of the town can make their plans accordingly.

COLORED PEOPLE WILL HAVE CELEBRATION NEXT TUESD'.

Colored people of Elba and surrounding territory will hold their annual celebration on next Tuesday, May 28. Circulars advertising the day were sent out several days ago.

A barbecue dinner will be served at the colored school building and there will be other features, including a baseball game in the afternoon, with a team from Florala, and a dance at night.

TRIPLET SQUASH

Mr. Buddie Moore, prominent farmer of the Damascus community, brought to The Clipper office last Saturday a "triplet" squash, which had been taken from his garden. It had three, of course, grown from one stem and in addition had grown together. Two had united practically their entire length and the third one for two or three inches. Gardeners say it is not uncommon to find "twin" squash, but this is the only triplet we have seen or heard of.

COFFEE COUNTY'S DELEGATES REPORT GREAT TRIP TO WASHINGTON FARMERS' GATHERING

By HUGH D. SEXTON

County Agent

On Tuesday, May 14, some 4,000 farmers, representing approximately thirty-three States of the United States, met in the Capitol City of the Union to express their appreciation to Congress and the Administration for the aid given agriculture and the part the farm programs are playing in the National Recovery. Coffee County was represented by Dave Edwards, J. Macon Johnson and Charles Dozier.

A brief summary of the trip as given to the writer by the County delegates indicates that a great time was had by all. The farmers were given a hearty welcome by the President, Congressmen and Representatives and were assured that the farming program would be taken care of in Washington.

Coffee County's delegates, along with delegates from other Alabama counties, left Montgomery, by train, Monday morning, May 13, at 6:30 and arrived in Washington the next morning at 7 o'clock.

The first general meeting, in Washington, was held at 9 a.m. on Tuesday, May 14, in the Constitutional Hall. Constitutional Hall is a privately owned auditorium and has to be rented for the meeting by the farmers, because the Federal Government did not own an auditorium large enough to house the crowd. The meeting was called to order by C. H. Day of Plainview, Texas, who introduced the chairman, W. H. Robertson, of Loachapoka, Alabama. Chairman Robertson conducted the following program:

"Expression of Appreciation to the Administration"—L. M. Lawson, South Carolina.

"Tobacco Program"—R. Hunter Pope, Enfield, North Carolina.

"Corn and Hog Program"—Dan Dean, Mason City, Iowa.

"Cotton Program"—A. M. Bourland, Vernon, Texas.

Address—Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture.

Secretary Wallace's address, Senator E. D. Smith, Chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee, was introduced, and spoke to the farmers on the farming programs.

On Tuesday afternoon the session began at 2 o'clock. Chairman Robertson conducted the following program:

Address—Chester C. Davis, Administrator, Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Address—C. A. Cobb, Chief Division of Cotton, Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

After Cobb's address the farmers prepared to go to the White House, because President Roosevelt had previously sent word that he wanted to see them and asked that they all come to the White House. At 5 p.m. the farmers assembled on the grounds of the White House and heard a wonderful address by the President of the United States.

On Tuesday night, each State's delegation met separately. The Alabama delegation met at the Hamilton Hotel, where they were joined by Senators Bankhead, Black, Congressmen Steagall, H. I. Hamer and other notables. The meeting was presided over by Jere Beasley of Selma, Alabama. Each Senator and Congressman made an address and pledged their support to the farming programs. Congressman Hamer reported that talks were good and that the food served was grand, but high.

On Wednesday morning the delegates started a day of sight-seeing. Large buses were chartered and each bus was equipped with a guide to explain all about the places visited. The farmers visited the Pan-American Building, Library of Congress, Bureau of Printing and Engraving, National Museum and the National Capitol, where they saw both Houses of Congress in Legislative Session. The farmers also visited Mt. Vernon, Arlington Cemetery and the Washington Monument.

Coffee County's delegates left Washington at 11:55 p.m. Wednesday, May 15, and arrived in Montgomery Thursday night, May 16, at 8:45. They had a wonderful time and asked the Agent to express to the people of the County who made the trip possible for them, their thanks and appreciation.

ARBOR MEETINGS—A revival meeting is being held in a brush arbor in West Elba. The first service was held Sunday afternoon and services are being held twice daily—at 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Rev. J. C. Johnson, Coffee County Baptist Association Missionary, is doing the preaching and is expounding the gospel truths with power and conviction. Large congregations are in attendance at the night services and many who seldom go to any church service are being reached. Rev. J. A. Jones, assisted by a number of West Elba men, built the arbor. Rev. B. S. Franklin and members of his congregation are cooperating and the cooperation of other churches is urged. Mrs. John Rhodes is acting as organist.

West Elba are enthusiastically entering into the revival meeting and indications point to fine results being accomplished. A cordial invitation is extended to everybody.

BUSY PREACHER—Rev. W. J. Hughes, pastor of the Elba Methodist Church, is as busy these days as the proverbial hen with one biddy. He spent the greater part of last week down at the camp meeting grounds between Hartford and DeFuniak Springs, getting things in readiness for the camp meeting to be held this summer. Brother Hughes is secretary of the organization. Some great meetings have been held there in past years and it is expected that the meeting this summer will be better than ever. Brother Hughes brought two hens and a flock of biddies home with him to raise and fatten for the meeting. He returned home last Friday night and had not much more than gotten to bed and to sleep when he received a message from Quincy, Fla., stating that his mother was in a serious condition. Brother Hughes hurried to his mother's bedside and found her greatly improved, she being subject to heart attacks. His father, Mr. A. H. Hughes, accompanied the Elba pastor to Elba Saturday night for a visit.

Besides preaching twice Sunday at Elba, Brother Hughes preached at Liberty Church in the afternoon to a large congregation. His brother-in-law, Rev. Gilbert, is pastor of the Liberty Church.

MORE RATTLERS — Reports continue to come in of rattlesnake killings. Ella M. Stewart, wife of John Stewart, colored, killed a rattler one day last week on what is known as the upper George Lindsey place, north of Elba. She found the snake near her turkey nest, coiled and ready to strike at the first opportunity. Ella promptly dispatched his snakeship with a large stick. The reptile measured 4½ feet in length and had 9 rattles. Not to be outdone by his sister, S. W. Daniels killed a five-foot rattler about a mile distant that same evening, it possessing 12 rattles.

* * * * *

DANGEROUS WIDOWS—Much has been said and done by and about various kinds of widows, but the most dangerous widow that we have come in close proximity with recently was the one Mr. J. J. Griffin brought to The Clipper office in a bottle one day last week. It was of the "black" species known as the black widow spider, whose bite is said to be as poisonous as that of a rattlesnake. Mr. Griffin stated that he discovered two of these widows under some rotten boards at the R. L. Cooper Lumber Company plant. He said a larger one than the specimen he showed in the bottle made an attack upon him much after the nature of a hen with biddies, but he mashed the life out of the venomous insect. He then saw the smaller spider and succeeding in capturing it alive and put it in the bottle. Upon examination, the spider was found to be jet black with the bright red hourglass design on its under side, as described in newspaper reports concerning this menacing spider which has caused the deaths of several persons in various parts of the country.

Mr. Griffin says he found three good-sized balls or cocoons inside of which were numerous little spiders almost ready to hatch out. He set fire to and burned up everything around the spiders' nest, which probably stamped out what might have become a serious menace to the whole community. Every one should take warning and constantly be on the lookout for these black widow spiders, for they seem to be scattered over all parts of the country. Before you put your hands into any place where a spider may be lurking, make an examination. The black widow spider is more dangerous than a rattlesnake for while the rattler will try to escape if let alone and will warn its attacker before striking, the black widow will rush at its victim and bite without warning.

"RUMBA" AT ELBA THEATRE TONIGHT FOR LAST TIMES

George Raft, former professional dancer, is co-starred with Carole Lombard tonight at the Elba Theatre in "Rumba," their most successful picture. The dance creations are marvelous and carried out to perfection by these two master dancers. Supporting them are Margo, Lynne Overman, Monroe Owsley, Iris Adrian and Alabama's own Gail Patrick. Tonight is your last chance to see "Rumba" at the Elba Theatre.

Bob Steele is again starred in one of his successful Western pictures for Friday night and Saturday afternoon and night. The picture, "Outlawed Terror," has an interesting plot and is filled with real he-man action. Supporting this program is the second chapter of Clyde Beatty's "Lost Jungle," a real animal serial.

cerning frog culture brought back to memory some experiences of my boyhood days. I remember visiting a frog pond in Missouri, owned by two brothers, who made a small fortune from raising bullfrogs scientifically. I have caught frogs in various ways—on hooks, with my hands and shot them with a rifle, all of which I considered fine sport. I am very fond of frog legs, preferable to fish or other kinds of game meat. There is a ready market for frog legs and many persons in Missouri and other states are raising them commercially at good profit. It is said that a frog lays countless thousands of eggs in a season, but due to the fact that snakes, fish, birds and almost every kind of wild life considers frogs its natural food, only one frog egg in several thousand ever becomes a frog of eatable size. I once saw the astounding statement that if one frog's eggs were protected and allowed to become mature frogs, they would produce more pounds of meat than would the offspring of an ordinary brood sow. The recent statement that a Dallas hotel was offering $5 per dozen for jumbo frog legs has set in motion a boom in frog culture in the South. The only frog-raising pond in Alabama has recently been started near Leeds, but indications point to the construction of a number of others. Several persons in Elba are considering the matter.

DIFFERENT—Abbreviations do not always stand for the same things in all cases. For instance, take the initials of N. G. Tillman. When I used to receive checks marked N. G. I knew at once that it meant that they were "no good." But my good friend Tillman's initials have no such meaning. Griel Tillman is one of our most esteemed and highly respected citizens, in spite of his initials.

HOME-COMING WEEK— Elba's home-coming week, mention of which was made in this column last week, has already caused considerable favorable comment. I have received several letters from former residents stating that they hope to "come back home" and mingle with old friends at that time. At its meeting Tuesday evening the Chamber of Commerce endorsed the plan and the project will receive the proper "boosting" in the near future.

PRETTY HOME—F. H. Murphree has taken advantage of the opportunity offered by the Government's Better Housing program with the result that the home on West Davis Street is fast becoming one of the prettiest to be seen in this section. The residence is being remodeled and painted. Other property owners should follow the example of Mr. and Mrs. Murphree and transform their homes into places of beauty instead of allowing them to decay and disintegrate. The opportunity is at hand for all who will take the trouble to take advantage of it.

GOOD JOB—Ira Whitman, Jim English, Lamie Martin et al have been doing a good job of drowning worms and other kinds of bait this week, but their fish catches have been pitifully small.

FARMERS CAMP—Things are moving along satisfactorily out at the farmers' training camp, there being about 275 enrolled. This number is expected to reach the desired 300 within a short time. The dissatisfied ones have been practically all weeded out and a large percentage of those now in the camp will probably stick it out through the six-months training course. The R. L. Cooper Lumber Company plant recently taken over by the Government is being operated at full capacity, turning out lumber to be used in building the several hundred farm houses on farms recently taken over by the project from the Federal Land Bank of New Orleans to become homes for future farm owners. The buildings at the camp have been practically completed and camp life has settled down to real business. It is interesting to talk with the boys at the camp and hear them discuss their future prospects.

QUEER TASTES—Mr. W. A. Wright, superintendent of building three bridges north of Elba on the Troy highway, is one of the finest and most congenial Christian gentlement I have ever known. However, even he will have to admit that he has some queer tastes. On one of my excursions with him,

HIGH SCHOOL MUSIC RECITAL GIVEN LAST THURSDAY NITE

What was probably the most successful entertainment of the type ever presented in Elba was given at the school auditorium Thursday night, May 16th, when Miss Annie Laurie Bullard presented her High School music pupils and the Glee Club in their final commencement recital. The pupils showed remarkable training and the manner in which they rendered their parts was a credit to the school and their instructor.

The Glee Club presented the first two numbers on the program. Their rendition of "The Call of Duty," "Sleepy Hollow Tune" and "The Shepherd Boy" proved to the spectators that the voices of Elba High School students can be ranked with the best. Under the direction of Miss Bullard, Elba's Glee Clubs have come to be looked upon as a source of highly cultured entertainment at the various commencement exercises and recitals. Their performance last Thursday night showed remarkable training and coaching.

The program was given in the following order:

"The Call of Duty" (Hadley) and "Sleepy Hollow Tune" (Kountz)—Glee Club.

Joyous Farmer (Schumann)—Sonny Inman.

PLEASANT RIDGE SING

On last third Sunday morning the Sacred Harp singers of this community met at this church and organized a pre-service singing for the year. After a number of choice songs led by Mr. Bruss Maddox, the following officers were elected to conduct the singing for the present year: Bruss Maddox, chairman; Irue Winson, secretary-chairman; C. Y. Nolin, secretary; Roy Cowson, Sandy Maddox, George Taylor, arranging committee.

Preaching services at Pleasant Ridge will be conducted this year by Elder Chancellor of Pike County. Bro. Chancellor is a very able Primitive Baptist preacher and as it has been the custom of this church to meet and sing the Sacred Harp for many years in the past, the writer hopes to have the pleasure of reporting a lesson sung by a large number of the best Sacred Harp singers in the county next third Sunday morning. Please try to be at the church by 9:00 o'clock and be sure to bring your Sacred Harp with you.

And remember that this letter extends to you a special invitation to this sing every third Sunday morning.

FARMERS HARVEST LARGE OAT CROP

Indications are that Alabama farmers will this year harvest about 2,500,000 bushels of oats, nearly 500,000 bushels more than last year, when 2,090,000 bushels were produced.

F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician, reports that on May 1 the oat crop was 80 per cent of normal, indicating a production of about 20 bushels per acre.

4,000 DIRT FARMERS ENDORSE AAA PROGRAM

AUBURN, Ala.—Four thousand farmers from 25 states, 250 being from Alabama, met in Washington this week and passed a resolution urging the continuation of the agricultural adjustment act.

"Be it resolved by the delegates assembled," the resolution says, "that we respectfully request our congressmen and senators to give their unqualified support to the continuation of the agricultural adjustment act, including the processing tax and the amendments to the act now pending before congress, and

"Be it further resolved, that we endorse the legislation enacted by the national congress and the sympathetic administration thereof in restoring the agricultural credit of the nation."

KUDZU SHOULD BE GRAZED CAREFULLY

AUBURN, Ala.—Kudzu should not be grazed too closely or mowed too frequently, else the stand may be destroyed, says J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist.

"Allow kudzu to grow at least two full seasons before mowing and three seasons if the land is poor," he advises. "Not more than two mowings each season seems to be the safest on soils of only fair fertility."

Many farmers have found that kudzu furnishes valuable grazing, particularly during the periods of drouth, by shifting the livestock from the grass pasture to the kudzu for a part of each day.

It was learned that another invitation had also been received. Announcement as to the place of meeting of the convention will be made when definitely decided by the executive committee.)

CYCLONE TAKES THIRD LIFE AS CONDREY BOY, 5, DIES

DOTHAN, May 24.—The toll in the cyclone which struck near Midland City Monday has climbed to three Thursday with the death of Hewey Condrey, Jr., five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hewey Condrey, who were killed when the storm smashed their small farm home and hurled all three into a field 150 yards away.

The boy died late Wednesday in a Dothan hospital of a fractured skull. In addition to the head injury, he suffered a broken arm and leg. Virtually no hope had been held for his recovery since attending physicians found him to be as gravely hurt as his parents.

Funeral was held at 10 a. m. Thursday at Wiggins Church, with the Rev. Mr. C. D. Kennedy of Dothan officiating.

Survivors are his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Condrey, of Midland City, his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Clark, Headland route 2, and a great grandmother, Mrs. Sara Jacobs, of Rocky Head, Ala.

CIRCUIT COURT CONVENED AT ELBA MONDAY MORNING

Circuit Court convened at Elba Monday morning, with Judge W. L. Parks presiding, and was still in session at noon Wednesday. The court will probably adjourn Wednesday afternoon or today.

THREE OPP GIRLS NARROWLY ESCAPE INJURY IN WRECK

(Opp Weekly News)

Two people were severely injured and four others suffered minor injuries in the collision of Opp and the Van Maloy place on the Elba road. Don Sessions, Andalusia man, who was driving the car, suffered a bully broken arm. He was reported in Opp Thursday morning that Mr. Sessions was carried to a Montgomery hospital. His arm was to be amputated. However, this report could not be verified. Miss Willie Mae Shemar, teen girl, suffered severe cuts about the face. The other occupants of the car were Miss Mary Kate Terrell of Opp, Miss Foye Houston of Opp, and Miss Sessions and Jimmy Jones, both of Andalusia. Jordan Lindsey and a Mr. Morgan, both of Elba, who were en route from Mobile to Elba with a truck load of produce which was involved in the accident, escaped uninjured.

According to Mr. Lindsey the truck was proceeding around the curve at a moderate speed in the direction of Elba when it met the car traveling at a high speed in the direction of Opp. The middle part of the car struck the truck in the front end. The left side of the car was crushed in as though hit by a pile driver. The top was wounded from the collision but did not turn over. No damage was done to the truck beyond ripping off about a square foot of the siding.

Miss Shear and Miss Houston were waiting in front of the Municipal Building for other members of the Shear family, attending the High School banquet in the auditorium, when they were invited to go for a short ride with the older people. The party had ridden out to the Henry Sellars place, about one mile from Opp on the Elba road, had turned around there and were proceeding back when the crash occurred.

Although Miss Shear is confined to her bed today, the other two Opp girls are up, although suffering from bruises.

MARTHA OMEGA CAIN

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cain deeply sympathize with them in the loss of their little daughter, Martha Omega, sixteen months of age, who passed away last Thursday morning at a Dothan hospital after a very short illness.

Besides her parents the little girl is survived by two brothers and one sister. Funeral services were conducted at New Home Friday morning by Rev. B. S. Franklin. Interment was in the church cemetery. Bonneau-Jeter had charge of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Brooks, Jr., of Montgomery are spending a few days here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Brooks.

About People and Things

By C. B. McDowell

By reason of as many wierd fielding misplays as I ever saw assembled in two innings, the visitors rolled up a total of 16 runs, 12 of them in the second frame. In the third inning a new pitcher went into the box and from then on through the remaining five stanzas, the locals took no new ink and Enterprise did no further scoring, but the damage had been done. Elba batters came up to markers, enough to win any reasonable game, but they were only lucky enough to Gordon Green and Walter Wittman, Jr., have asked me not to say anything about Monday's fiasco in this column, so I will accede to their wishes.

SCHOOL STATISTICS—Superintendent J. C. Dixon handed me a sheet of attendance statistics for the Elba schools during the year just closed. On account of an unusual rush of advertising in this week's issue of The Clipper, it is crowded out but it will appear in next week's issue.

FARMERS CAMP—I am informed that there are now 307 young married farmers at the training camp south of Elba and it is thought that nearly all of them will remain for the six-months course of practical farming, home-building, etc. The R. L. Cooper Lumber Company plant, recently taken over by the project, is being operated at full capacity, boys from the camp furnishing most of the labor. Timber on the farms taken over by the Government is being cut and will be worked up into lumber for the several hundred houses to be built on the 40-acre farms to be allotted to deserving farmers on liberal terms as soon as the present crop year is over. The highway leading from Elba to the camp is being widened and it is rumored that it is to receive a "black-top" surface. It is also rumored that the original number of 300 young farmers to receive the benefits of the camp will be doubled and perhaps trebled. The latter rumor has not been verified, however.

PAVING—I am informed that the finishing touches are now to be put on the paving projects on the Elba-Opp and Elba-Troy highways which received their first coats of asphalt and slag over the required 21 days ago. The Troy paving project on the Elba-Troy Road, extending north beyond Big Creek is nearly and will be ready to applications of oil, asphalt and slag as soon as the material arrives. It is rumored that other paving contracts will be let for paving on the Elba-Troy highway, on the Coffee County and Pike County ends, in the near future.

LEVEE—Work is expected to be resumed on the levee construction in Elba (Thursday) morning. The Morris Construction Company crew at a modest pace in the direction of Elba when it met the crew working at a high speed in the direction of Opp. The middle part of the car struck the truck in the front end. The left side of the car was crushed in as though hit by a pile driver. The top was wounded from the collision but did not turn over. No damage was done to the truck beyond ripping off about a square foot of the siding.

REVIVAL CLOSES—The brush

arbor revival meeting which has been in progress in West Elba for the past ten days is announced to come to a close Wednesday night of this week. County Baptist Missionary Johnson has been doing the preaching in a way that has been an inspiration to the large congregations which have been attending the services. Many persons have been reached at these services who have not been accustomed to going to any church. It has been suggested that an afternoon Sunday School and possibly a mission would be a valuable asset to West Elba. Brother Johnson has been ably assisted by Rev. J. A. Jones, Rev. B. S. Franklin, Mrs. John Rhodes and others.

CAMP SERVICE—Dr. W. D. Ogletree, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Enterprise, conducted a service at the Farmers' Training Camp Sunday afternoon. Rev. W. J. Hughes, pastor of the Elba Methodist Church, conducted the devotional service and led the singing. Mrs. Lillian Spangler sang a solo. A large number of inmates of the camp and others listened with rapt attention to Dr. Ogletree's able sermon.

SERVICE AT ALMSHOUSE—Rev. W. J. Hughes conducted a service Sunday afternoon at the county almshouse. The inmates assembled on the front porch and greatly enjoyed the singing of hymns, personal testimonials and the sermonette by Brother Hughes. The Revs. Johnson and Jones were also present and added to the service with prayer and testimony.

OPP MEETING—Rev. W. J. Hughes, Dr. W. M. Ringsdorf, Dwight Moody and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McDowell went to Opp Tuesday night and attended the revival meeting being held at the Mill school auditorium. The Rev. Mr. Owens of North Alabama is doing the preaching. He is recognized as being one of the ablest preachers in the South and a number of other pastors are assisting in the meeting and much interest is being manifested.

DANGEROUS SPIDERS—That the dangerous black widow spider has taken up her abode in considerable numbers is evidenced by the fact that Water Superintendent Ernest Owen found two in meter boxes this week. While making his meter-reading rounds he found a very large one in W. M. Brunson's home on Monday. The following day he found a smaller specimen in another meter box. In both cases the spider viciously attacked Mr. Owen when he disturbed the web and he lost no time in "extinguishing" her widowship. Water meter boxes seem to be a favorite harbor for black widows. Rubbish piles are also said to be adapted to her habitat. Our people need to be careful in this matter and should continually be on the lookout for this dangerous insect. Scorpions are said to be as poisonous as that of a rattlesnake.

TWO NEGROES DIE—Two colored youth, both former Elba residents, died this week and their bodies were brought here for burial. Ida Hammond Adams, wife of Frank Adams, died at her home in Mobile and her body arrived in Elba Tuesday night, being taken to the home of her brother, Lev Hammond, where funeral services were held Wednesday, following which interment took place in Evergreen Cemetery.

Dutch Velverton, brother-in-law of Lev Hammond, died in Savannah, Ga., and his body arrived in Elba on the noon train Tuesday. The body was taken to the home of his brother, Dave Velverton, where funeral services were held Wednesday. The remains were interred in Evergreen Cemetery.

VERY FEEBLE—Mrs. Gertrude Braswell is becoming very feeble. "Grandma" Braswell is one of the most elderly persons in this community, being 86 years of age. She is said to be exceedingly fond of watermelons and says that if she can just hold on until watermelon season comes she thinks she can pull through for considerable time yet. O. C. Smith reports that he will have melons ready by July 1st. so here's hoping that "Grandma" Braswell will live to at least enjoy another watermelon season.

EMANCIPATION DAY—Tuesday was Emancipation Day and our colored folks took full advantage of their holiday. A feature of the day's program was the baseball game in which the Elba invincibles walloped the Samson club by a score of 12 to 1. All teams look alike to Elba's dusky ball chunkers and bat wielders.

TWO FIERCE INNINGS—The Elba white baseball team gave a vivid exhibition of how the great game should not be played on Elba Field Monday afternoon. Enterprise was the opposing team.

REVIEW OF CASES IN SUPREME COURT

By virtue of the fact that Judge Brunson and me are the only two members of the Elba Bar Association who have not been called to the Federal Court to defend some bootlegger, I have been able to keep up with the decisions of the Supreme Court of Alabama. Here are a few of the recent decisions:

Where a party to a contract has been induced to enter into it by fraud, he may rescind it and recover what he has paid or parted with, or he may affirm it and sue for damages.
